Welcome to Bluffton

If you're looking for one of the South's most charming towns, look no further than Bluffton, South Carolina.

But don't take our word for it, Southern Living, Travel + Leisure, and others have placed Bluffton at the top of numerous "best of" lists for everything from its local cuisine to its rich history. They recognized Bluffton's unique, quirky charm that makes this Southern destination a must-do on your travel list.

Bluffton is a town where roots run deep. The connection to the May River and surrounding ecosystem is the soul of Bluffton, and its residents are the heart of a tradition of hospitality that goes back for generations. Get to know the locals. Blufftonians are proud of their town and are quick to give you the local flavor.

Bluffton's tapestry of diversity is woven throughout its local galleries and shops brimming with artisanal goods made right here. In historic Old Town, you'll find a plethora of shops with one-of-a-kind pieces. You'll savor culinary gems like FARM and The Cottage dishing up Southern favorites. How about some shrimp and grits and locally harvested May River oysters? Burnt Church Distillery is the place to check out locally made spirits that tell a Southern story with every sip.

Spend an afternoon meandering along the May River and don't be surprised by the frequent dolphin sightings and pelicans diving for delicacies along the way. Getting out on the water is a must, and local boat excursion guides often grew up fishing and crabbing along Bluffton's waterways and tidal creeks.

Around every corner is a pocket park, historic landmark, or charming church like the Church of the Cross at the end of Calhoun Street. Don't miss the Wright Family Park with extraordinary sunset views best seen from the swing that sways gently from the centuries-old oak tree along the water.

With the famed Forbes five-star Montage Palmetto Bluff or the Old Town Bluffton Inn, you'll experience an unforgettable stay immersed in the nature, rich history, and culture of Bluffton.

Stay for an afternoon or stay for a lifetime. Bluffton is fast becoming known as not only a place that is brimming with character and charm, but as a great place to raise a family or retire gracefully where Southern hospitality is alive and well.

You'll find a renewed sense of spirit in this place known as the Heart of the Lowcountry™ for a reason. The "Bluffton State of Mind" is an experience unlike any other.

HEYWARD HOUSE
ca. 1841
BLUFFTON HISTORICAL PRESERVATION SOCIETY

Step inside the Heyward House for a peek into Bluffton's past / By Linda Lanier

For 170 years, only two families lived in the house at 70 Boundary Street, in what is now known as Old Town Bluffton. The house was built by enslaved people in 1847 for John Cole, a planter who designed it as a summer home for his family.

Cole designed the house after a style popular in the colonial West Indies, built to be more comfortable in the Lowcountry summer. A simple frame house, it has remained mostly unchanged. It was one of only 15 structures still standing in Bluffton after Union troops set fire to the town during the Civil War in 1863. The Heyward family bought the house in 1867, and multiple generations of the family lived there until 1998.

For the past 25 years, the house has been owned by the Bluffton Historical Preservation Society. The house is listed on the National Register of Historic Places as part of the Bluffton Historic District.

House tours open the door to a time long past, with original furnishings and period-appropriate clothing, toys, weapons, and 19th- and early 20th-century artifacts, items such as a spinning wheel, kitchen gadgets, hand-stitched quilts, clocks and baby carriages. Docents are well versed in the history of the era and the place, and they engage visitors in lively presentations.

Bob Drabik, a docent on Monday mornings, wields a Civil War sword with dexterity while explaining the progression from swords to muskets to rifles. He points out a bridal gown and groom's vest from the 1860s, which are unbelievably small by today's standards. He shares knowledge of the weight and pay scale of Civil War soldiers and a discussion of 1900s-era table manners.

For an educational and fascinating journey into the compelling history of a family and a town, Heyward House is time well spent.

CARTING AROUND

If riding is your pleasure, take a golf cart tour with Hidden Treasures Tours. The Pringle brothers, Nate and Ray, are Bluffton natives who know the town inside and out, its history and its culture. hiddentreasuresbluffton.com

LEARNING FROM EXPERTS

The historic Church of the Cross, on the banks of the May River at the end of Calhoun Street, is open for docent-led tours Tuesday through Thursday from 11 a.m.-2 p.m. Call (843) 757-2661 to schedule a docent.

ONGOING LEGACY

Campbell Chapel African Methodist Episcopal Church dates to 1874, when nine former slaves purchased the original building from Bluffton Methodist Church. The building was built in 1853 and can be admired from Boundary Street. Read more about the church's history on page 12.

The Gullah Way of Life

Preserving Gullah culture and chronicling its history / By Linda Lanier

Light in the Night, The Slave Dwelling Project

Heyward House Museum
& Welcome Center

For more than 300 years, the Gullah, descendants of slaves, have lived in the Lowcountry of South Carolina. Brought against their will from West and Central Africa, they endured hardship and heartbreak. After emancipation, they established new communities on the sea islands of Hilton Head Island, Daufuskie Island, and Saint Helena, along with Bluffton and other small towns on the nearby mainland. Today these families and their ancient culture remain a vibrant thread in the fabric of Bluffton life.

After the Civil War and well into the 20th century, the Gullah community continued to live on islands with no bridges and little contact with the mainland. Fishing, oystering, and farming were the way of life. Much of the Lowcountry's beloved food culture originated with the Gullah — rice perlo, okra gumbo, shrimp and gravy, all cooked with spices and time-honored African cooking methods.

The rich Gullah creole dialect, a distinctive mixture of English and African languages, is still spoken and written. One of the best-known Gullah expressions, “Kumbaya,” translated “come by here,” found its way into a famous folk song. And Gullah sweetgrass baskets, treasured for their beauty and artistry, are sewn by hand as they were in the 18th century.

Spiritual life remains at the heart of Gullah culture. Small historic praise houses are tucked under majestic oak trees along sandy lanes in the Lowcountry, and the New Testament has been translated into Gullah.

The descendants of formerly enslaved people in South Carolina and North Carolina refer to themselves as Gullah, while the descendants in Georgia and north Florida refer to themselves as Geechee. The Gullah Geechee Cultural Heritage Corridor, which was established by Congress in 2006 to recognize this special history and way of life, is a 12,000-square-mile stretch of places that play a prominent role in the centuries-old Gullah Geechee culture.

Several daily educational experiences along with special events encourage learning more about Gullah culture. The Light In The Night event with guest Joseph McGill from The Slave Dwelling Project held at the Heyward House Museum & Welcome Center was part of a larger celebration for Juneteenth.

A Story of Perseverance

With each new chapter, Campbell Chapel A.M.E. Church chronicles its members' strength and vision / By Linda Lanier

On a momentous day in February 1874, nine formerly enslaved men recorded the deed transferring the Bluffton Methodist Church to the African Methodist Episcopal Church. These nine men became the original trustees of the newly formed Campbell Chapel African Methodist Episcopal Church (A.M.E.).

The church was named for J.P. Campbell, at that time the presiding bishop of the A.M.E. Church. The church, originally constructed by the Methodists in 1853, was one of 15 structures still standing after the “Burning of Bluffton” in 1863 by Union forces during the Civil War. In 2004, a new church building was constructed next door. Today the historic building is beautifully maintained by the congregation.

After purchasing the church and the land for $500, congregation members made changes to the building to make it their own, and Campbell Chapel A.M.E. became a cornerstone of African-American life in Bluffton. Located in the middle of Old Town Bluffton on Boundary Street, the church served as a center of traditional A.M.E. worship. Sunday hymns, prayers, sermons, and blessings filled the hearts and souls of parishioners. The church also provided a place where congregation members could be educated.

After several years of research, the church was placed on the National Register of Historic Places in 2019. Much of the history of the church was handed down through oral tradition as records were lost over the decades. Descendants of the original parishioners, who are current members of Campbell Chapel A.M.E., aided historical researchers by sharing stories from their ancestors.

On another momentous day — Oct. 16, 2022 — Bluffton Mayor Lisa Sulka dedicated the Campbell Chapel A.M.E. Church Historic Marker. Ceremony attendees included descendants of the first trustees, the current congregation, and Bluffton neighbors and friends.

“Our town celebrates all the stories of all Bluffton’s residents and how collectively these stories are interwoven into our vibrant tapestry, which collectively tells Bluffton’s full history,” Mayor Sulka said at the ceremony.

On any lovely morning in Old Town Bluffton, take a stroll down Boundary Street and pause in front of the historic, modest Greek Revival church. Imagine an equally beautiful day in 1874 — the sun is shining, the May River is flowing, and a new congregation celebrates a new beginning.

To find out more about Campbell Chapel A.M.E. Church, go to South Carolina Historic Properties Record schpr.sc.gov/index.php/Detail/properties/53736.

On the site, you’ll also find a link to the National Register of Historic Places, which details the complete background.

In October 2022, Campbell Chapel A.M.E. Church received a historic marker from the South Carolina Department of Archives and History, recognizing its significance.

Rollin' on the River

When someone names his dogs Marsh and River, you know he must be a serious water lover. Those golden retrievers receive more customer requests than any captain at May River Excursions. They belong to Capt. Stephen Shoemaker. He instilled a love of the river into his son, Chris, at an early age.

“Growing up on the river, all I’ve ever done is the trips we offer,” says Capt. Chris Shoemaker, who now owns May River Excursions. He ran the trips for fun when he was 12 with his dad, brother, and friends. “I wanted to have a job I enjoyed, and I love showing people the beauty of the river.”

Trips with May River Excursions can be leisurely, for sightseeing, learning history, and watching sunsets, or they can require some participation, think fishing, shrimping, or crabbing.

“In the summer, families love our crabbing excursion since it’s more interactive and you get to take home dinner,” Capt. Chris says. “In the fall, our shrimping trip is a fan favorite and a great experience to learn how the locals stock their freezers.”

You can also get on the water and explore nature with Outside Palmetto Bluff, which specializes in kayak, paddleboard, and bike rentals. Naturalist guides not only lead the activities, but also explain the Lowcountry surroundings and habitats as you navigate through creeks and waterways. On full-moon nights, book a paddle trip after dark to cruise in the moonlight. Try your hand at stand-up paddleboarding with an introductory lesson, or go kayak fishing for largemouth bass, which has become one of the fastest growing sports. Outside Palmetto Bluff also offers biking and walking tours.

Whatever trip you choose, soak in your surroundings and enjoy the spontaneity of the river, with sights such as dolphins jumping and maybe even a bald eagle soaring.

Follow the sounds of laughing children to find DuBois Park in Old Town. The playground, in the shape of a shrimp boat, is the centerpiece of this active park. Benches and a pavilion welcome grown-ups. 📶

Martin Family Park
 68 Boundary Street

With benches and green space and plenty of play areas, the park honors the Martin family who were longtime Bluffton philanthropists. On Thursday afternoons, the Farmers Market of Bluffton is held here, making the park especially popular. 📶

May River Road Pocket Park
 1220 May River Road

The newest park in Bluffton's collection of outdoor gathering spaces, this pocket park includes landscaping, seating, and sidewalks, adding a pleasing place to take a break as you explore Old Town.

Oscar Frazier Park
 11 Recreation Court

The recreation and sports headquarters for the whole family, this park houses baseball fields, a playground, fitness trails, and a dog park. It's a great spot for running, walking, and relaxing. The creative playground, with an Imagination Train and sensory wall, is modern park fun. 📶

Oyster Factory Park
 63 Wharf Street

This riverfront park sits by a Bluffton landmark, the century-old oyster-shucking factory. The park sets the scene for sunset parties in the summer and oyster roasts in cooler months. 📶

Buckwalter Place Park and Veterans Memorial

Pritchard Pocket Park
 124 Pritchard Street

This little jewel on the river is the perfect spot for sitting on a bench, listening to birds sing, and enjoying the breeze as it whispers through ancient oak trees.

Wright Family Park
 111 Calhoun Street

Spend a lazy afternoon in a swing overlooking the May River, enjoying the stillness. Take a boardwalk stroll down to the river and watch fiddler crabs scurry through pluff mud and great blue herons glide over the water. The park is named in honor of the Wright family who lived on the property for many years. It is wheelchair accessible. 📶

Rejuvenate your mind and body when you visit Bluffton / By Leah Hughes

When you vacation in Bluffton, the Lowcountry setting enhances your relaxation. The gentle curves and steady flow of the May River slow you down. Parks tucked alongside streets and riverbanks encourage you to linger outside.

To many people the word exercise means a select set of activities, such as running, cycling, or weight lifting. While those are great exercises, Bluffton's Fusion Fit expands exercise beyond what's expected with its Stand and Paddle options, which blend stand-up paddleboarding with fitness moves in a class called Paddle Fused Fitness. All movements are done on a paddleboard on the May River. As you progress through the skills, you not only become a stronger paddler, but also build stability, agility, core strength, and overall fitness. Participants also benefit from exercising outdoors in the sunshine and fresh air while surrounded by nature. Other paddle options include recreational tours and paddleboard lessons.

Fusion Fit also offers adult gymnastics classes that allow participants to learn basic acrobatic skills, such as handstands and cartwheels, or to build strength with apparatuses, such as bars and rings. Additional group exercise class options are available and open to visitors.

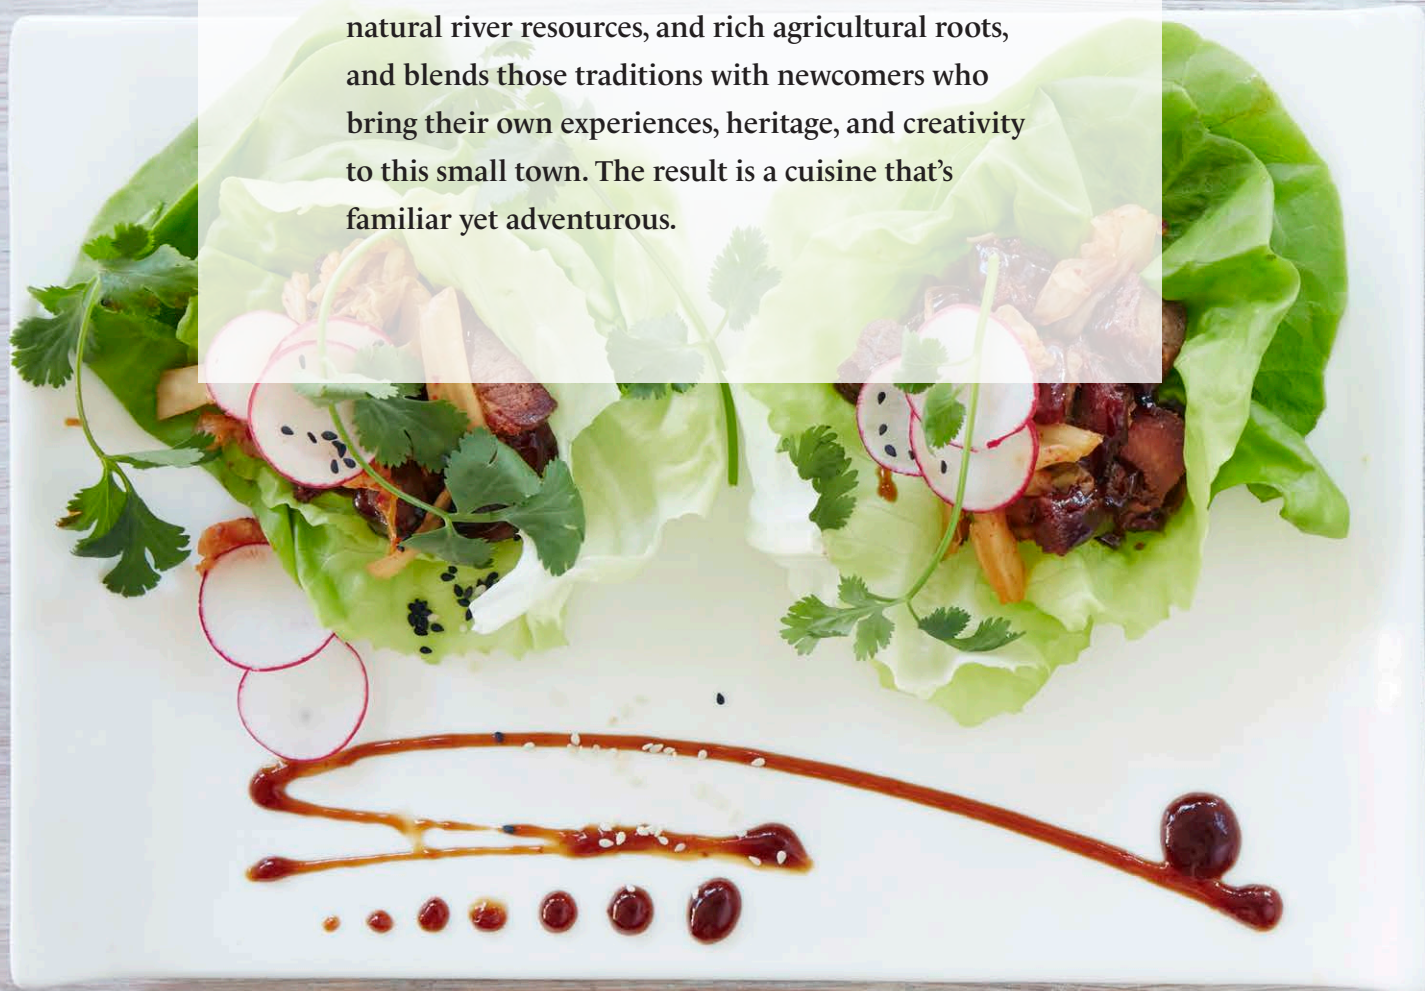

If running is your game, Bear Foot Sports invites you to participate in a year's worth of Lowcountry races. The Polar Bear 5K in January starts the year with a jaunt. The Sunset 5K run and walk kicks off the beloved Shrimp Festival weekend in July. Give back by joining in the Red Shoes Run in November. The 5K race takes place at Rose Hill Plantation, and proceeds benefit Ronald McDonald House Charities.

Fuel up for whatever form of exercise you choose with wholesome juices, smoothies, salads, wraps, and bowls from The Juice Hive. In addition to a full menu of freshly prepared foods, the shop sells organic and sustainably sourced food products and supplements. The shop specializes in cold-pressed juices, featuring super foods such as kale, beets, and carrots. For a healthy and filling lunch, try a bowlful of noodles, a veggie burger, or a wrap.

Eat Local

Fun, funky, and flavorful — the Bluffton dining scene draws from decades of culinary history, natural river resources, and rich agricultural roots, and blends those traditions with newcomers who bring their own experiences, heritage, and creativity to this small town. The result is a cuisine that's familiar yet adventurous.

Deliciously Different

The Cottage serves locally sourced Southern dishes with a twist / By Leah Hughes

Get the dish on great local eateries
Visit Bluffton.org/food-drink

Leslie Rohland loves collecting cookbooks. She was going through an old hand-typed Lowcountry cookbook, barely held together with paper clips, when she came up with the latest iteration to round out her shrimp-and-grits trio, dirty shrimp and grits. The recipe, inspired by a Gullah dish, exemplifies what Rohland wants to serve at her restaurant, The Cottage — creative takes on historical recipes that use local ingredients.

The Cottage is a colorful spot with a vibrant patio located in an 1868 cottage on Calhoun Street. On any given day, you'll find families enjoying a meal together, friends meeting for lunch, and small groups celebrating special occasions around umbrella-clad tables. Four-legged customers have their own doggy menu.

"I think there's something very true about the phrase, Bluffton state of mind," Rohland says. "Bluffton has its own energetic space on the planet, and we do things a different way than anyone else."

Breakfast favorites include crabcake Benedict, challah French toast, and multiple variations on the classic mimosa and bloody mary. Mugs hold locally roasted coffee from sister company May River Coffee Roasters. Lunch customers relish assorted salads and sandwiches, as well as house favorites, such as fried green tomatoes and crab, corn, and bacon pot pie. Customers in the know save room for a slice of coconut cake or pecan pie from the bakery. On Sundays, brunch combines breakfast and lunch favorites plus weekly specials.

Since opening in 2009, The Cottage has won numerous awards, from best brunch and best lunch to best omelet, best dessert, and best shrimp and grits over and over again.

"The beauty of the recipe is in its simplicity," Rohland says of her shrimp and grits. "If you're using quality ingredients, you don't have to do a whole lot to them."

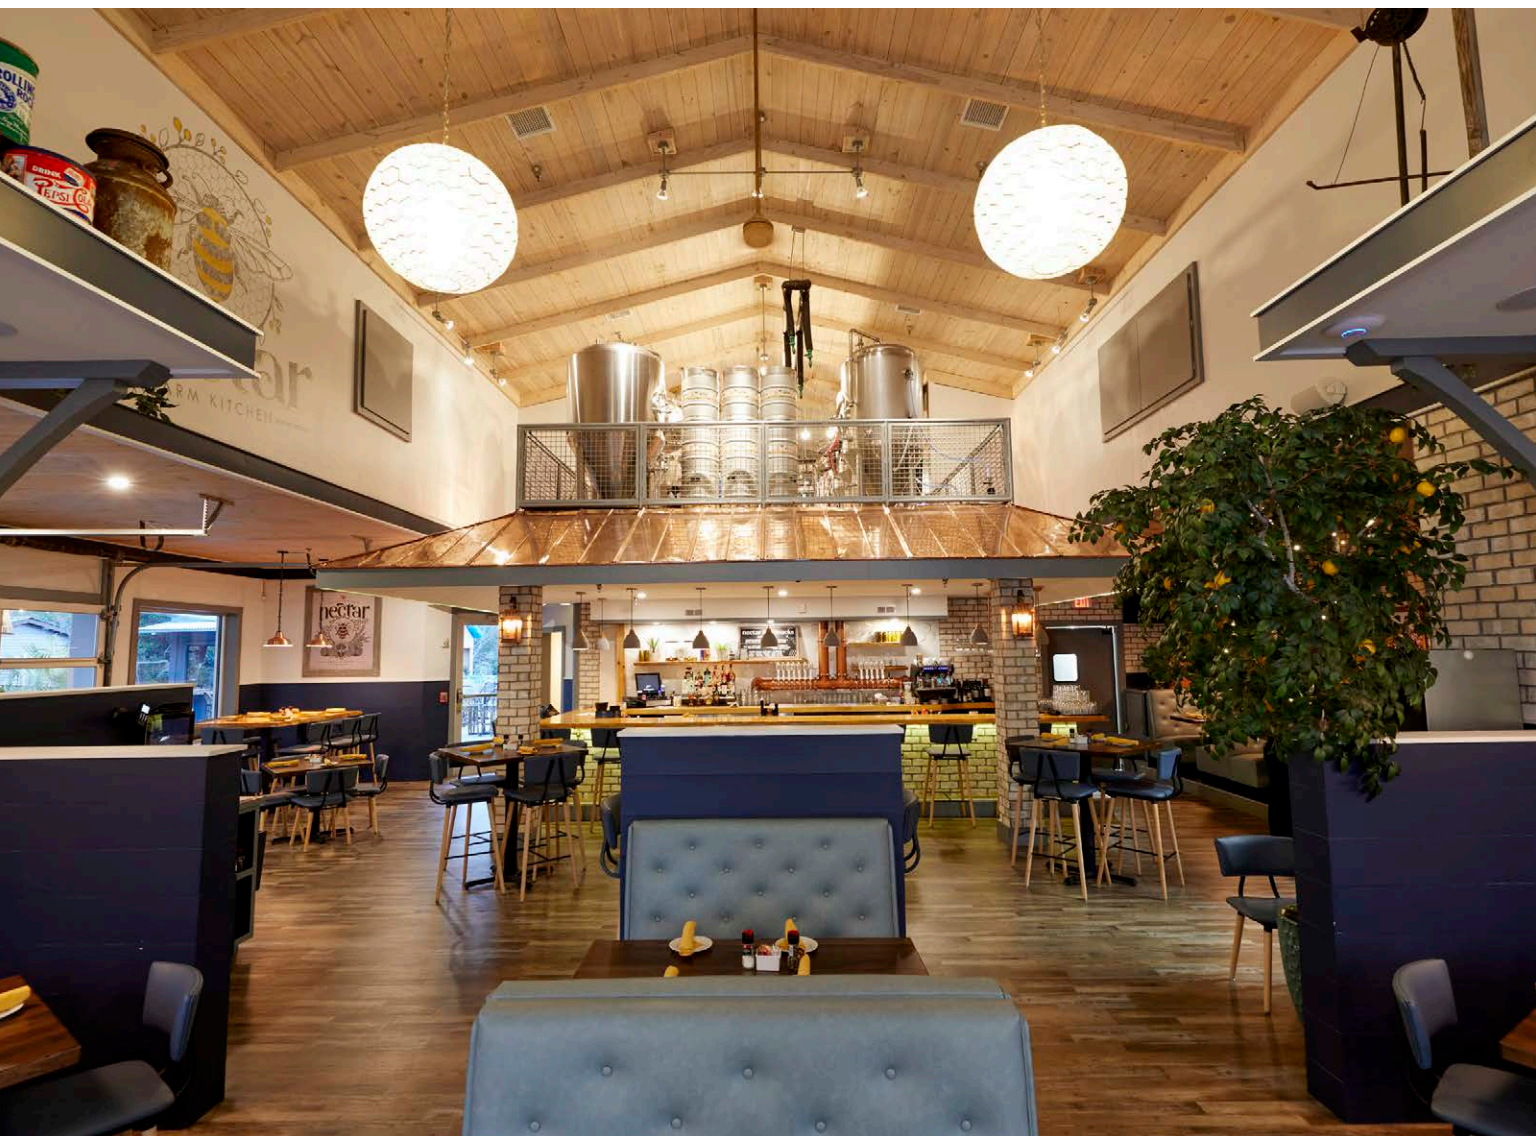

Rohland tested the original shrimp-and-grits recipe nine times before settling on a keeper. Her husband served as the taste tester. The pimento cheese version came from a customer. And that latest one, dirty shrimp and grits, includes brisket.

"We are very conscientious about where we live and what we're fortunate to have here," Rohland says. "We offer it as a gift to the customers from the people in Bluffton."

A Sweet Deal

Nectar Farm Kitchen is a beloved part of the Bluffton dining scene | By Linda Lanier

Ask anyone in Old Town Bluffton about their favorite restaurant, and Nectar Farm Kitchen is sure to be at the top of the list. Located on Bluffton Road, close to the intersection of May River Road, Nectar is a pleasant walk from the shops and galleries on Calhoun Street and the Promenade, with ample outdoor seating, a friendly bar, and indoor dining.

Nectar is the latest restaurant from SERG Group, which has been an important part of the local food and beverage industry for more than 30 years.

Paul Norris, a partner with SERG Group who oversees the restaurant, is enthusiastic about Nectar's ability to buy from local farmers, fishermen and women, and dairies.

"Our menu is rich in local ingredients — produce, poultry, shrimp, beef, and rice — imparting the taste of the Lowcountry to all of the delicious food we serve at Nectar Farm Kitchen," Norris says. "We have some great pairings with our draft beers from our Nectar Brewing Company, which are brewed right upstairs."

A whimsical bee motif, woven throughout the restaurant in the form of honeycomb light fixtures and coffee mugs sporting the yellow-and-black mascot, acknowledges the pollinator's vital role in our food supply.

For breakfast and lunch, chicken and waffles is a crowd-pleaser. Any meal that starts with a "bag o' donuts," covered in cinnamon sugar and served with seasonal jam, is destined for success. And don't miss the deviled eggs, which are gussied up versions of this covered-dish staple.

Sea Island Stew, loaded with shrimp, crab, okra, and Carolina Gold rice, is a hearty Lowcountry lunch. Don't worry if you missed the sweet potato pancakes for breakfast; they're served all day. One of the most popular dishes on the supper menu is blue crab and grits, which is based on a historical recipe that has been a Lowcountry staple for generations. Root-beer-braised short ribs, served with mashed potatoes and farm vegetables is a fun take on a traditional beef dish that is best enjoyed with either a glass of sweet tea or a robust red from the wine list.

Whether you gather at Nectar for breakfast, lunch, or supper, or simply coffee, a craft beer, or a cocktail, bring a good appetite for a cordial atmosphere.

Hand-Shucked Heritage

Bringing the best of the May River to your table

The block building at the end of Wharf Street is a Bluffton landmark. Home to Bluffton Oyster Company, which has been in business since 1899, the building sits on piles of oyster shells, representing a seafood industry that goes back more than a century. Larry Toomer, along with his wife, Tina, is the third generation to run the family business, following in the footsteps of his father and grandfather. Bluffton Oyster Company is the last hand-shucking oyster house in South Carolina.

The Toomers pride themselves on oysters, shrimp, clams, crabs, mussels, and fish pulled from local waters. They sell the fresh-caught seafood at their market, where customers purchase provisions for oyster roasts and Lowcountry boils.

Just up the street, Bluffton Family Seafood House, the restaurant extension of the business, serves seafood dishes in a casual space with indoor and outdoor seating. Order a draft beer or glass of wine to pair with bowls of she-crab soup and platters of steamed oysters, peel-and-eat shrimp, and blackened fish. Fresh seafood is the star, but friendly service plays a strong supporting act.

Well Crafted

These Bluffton beverages come with a backstory | By Leah Hughes

When your drink of choice has an intriguing story about who created it, what inspired the flavor, and what local food to pair it with, you imbibe the spirit of Bluffton with each sip.

Bee-Town Mead & Cider

1230-B May River Road

Opened in 2018, Bee-Town is South Carolina's first meadery. Mead is an ancient, fermented beverage; it is similar to wine, but mead is made from honey. Participate in a tasting to sample different meads, such as those made from cotton blossom honey and gallberry blossom honey, and infused meads, such as coffee, blueberry, strawberry, and vanilla.

Burnt Church Distillery

120 Bluffton Road

What's better than small-batch locally crafted spirits? Those that give back to the community in which they're created. Burnt Church Distillery draws on local folklore to influence the taste of its spirits and in turn weave in Lowcountry lore with each bottle. Visit The Sanctuary tasting room to sample bourbon, gin, whiskey, vodka, and moonshine made into tantalizing cocktails. Pair the libations with a charcuterie board or brick-oven pizza from Pizza Co. next door.

Craft Kitchen

7 Johnston Way

As pleasing to the eye as the palate, this neighborhood gastropub in Old Town Bluffton encourages patrons to gather around craft beverages and scratch-made food. The rotating list of ales, lagers, ciders, and wines includes local selections from around town.

River Dog Brewing Co.

591 Browns Cove Road North

Led by female head brewer Amelia Keefe, this veteran Lowcountry brewery celebrates more than a decade of delicious drafts. Traditional go-tos include the flagship IPA and Riverwalk Empire pilsner. For something out of the ordinary, try the award-winning Cirque Du Solera, a wood-aged sour. Or for a true taste of community, order a Perkolatte stout brewed with coffee from The Corner Perk Cafe in downtown Bluffton.

lot 9 Brewing Co.

258 Red Cedar Street, Suite 14

lot 9 is a nano-brewery. Its small size allows the brewery to constantly try new things. From hoppy IPAs to malty German lagers, smooth stouts, and mouth-puckering sours, lot 9 prides itself on quality and variety.

Nectar Brewing Company

207 Bluffton Road

Located in a loft space above Nectar Farm Kitchen and visible from the dining room, the newest brewery in Bluffton brews beers to pair with its menu of farm-to-table fare. The lineup of food-friendly beers includes five year-round standards and a couple of seasonal selections. The focus is true-to-form ales, such as pales, blondes, and well-balanced IPAs.

Southern Barrel Brewing Co.

375 Buckwalter Place Boulevard

With a taproom, tavern, and beer garden, there's always something happening at Southern Barrel Brewing. Whether you're simply stopping by for an afternoon pint, digging into a burger or tacos for dinner, or relaxing in the beer garden with your four-legged friend (who'll be delighted by the puppy menu), Southern Barrel serves suds to suit.

Picks for a romantic date day

BREAKFAST

Head to Corner Perk Brunch Cafe where everyone is treated like a regular. House-made syrups flavor lattes, such as honey lavender or salted caramel. Build your own avocado toast or order the basted-egg open-face sandwich to share.

LUNCH

Enjoy a fried-green-tomato sandwich with pimento cheese or roasted vegetables on house-made bread for a true Southern lunch at Lowcountry Fresh Market & Cafe. An array of sandwiches, salads, and bowls with locally sourced ingredients is on the menu, along with sweet and delicious banana pudding and peach cobbler.

DINNER

Make reservations at The Bluffton Room. This classic American restaurant is truly a dining experience with tableside preparations. Don't miss the grilled octopus starter. And follow it with Dover sole meuniere for two. Save room for bananas foster — both for the dish and the show.

Selections for Sunday fun-day

BRUNCH

Enjoy a leisurely midmorning meal at FARM, which sources fresh produce, fruits, meats, dairy, and seafood from local farmers, fishermen, and artisan producers. Choose a main and two sides for a hearty helping. The menu changes seasonally, but you can't go wrong with anything involving a biscuit, sausage gravy, farm-fresh eggs, and Jimmy Red grits.

HAPPY HOUR

At Burnt Church Distillery, order a customized flight to sample the small-batch spirits. Or choose from the list of signature cocktails, such as steel magnolia, which combines classic Southern flavors, like blueberry and honey, with cucumber vodka. Pair your cocktail with an appetizer or pizza from Pizza Co., adjacent to the tasting room.

DINNER

Eat with your eyes first at The Pearl Kitchen & Bar on Calhoun Street. The restaurant starts with the finest seafood, steaks, and produce, and composes those ingredients into plates of art. Pistachio-encrusted ahi tuna features rare medallions accented with bright green pops of edamame-and-wasabi puree. Bread pudding with candied bacon is almost too pretty to devour.

FARM BLUFFTON

Locally focused, inspired by the seasons. FARM Bluffton is an ingredient-driven neighborhood restaurant with a strong emphasis on seasonality, guest experience, and influences from world cuisines and techniques.

The restaurant's commitment to the community begins with how they source their food. From small local farmers and fishermen to artisan producers, FARM Bluffton fosters close, personal relationships that support their Lowcountry neighbors. The result? A curated dining experience that reflects true hospitality and service to the community.

Thursdays at the Market

The weekly farmers market in Bluffton is not only somewhere to shop, but also a meeting place where locals and visitors mingle with farmers and producers / By Linda Lanier

You can tell when it's Thursday afternoon in Old Town because the Farmers Market of Bluffton is in full swing at Martin Family Park on Boundary Street. A Bluffton tradition for 14 years, the outdoor market, held year-round from noon to 5 p.m., features prepared food; live music; and seasonal produce, eggs, and meat from local farms.

Bluffton residents and visitors arrive early for delectable she-crab soup and crabcakes from Hank's Lowcountry. Many patrons come every week especially for Great Food Co-op's homemade chips, and sauces and chutneys based on old, family recipes. Ravioli and fresh pasta sauces of Rio Bertolini are sure to sell out by the end of the day, and aromas of saffron and spices from Fire & Rice paella, prepared in the classic tradition, float through the air. Sprout Momma bakes beautiful breads, such as apricot walnut and garlic rosemary. For folks whose day is not complete without a confection, Chocolates and Sweets serves an array of handmade truffles.

Farmers load their stands with fresh fruits and vegetables, all locally grown and only available seasonally: satsuma mandarins and Meyer lemons from Franklin's Citrus Farm; peaches and strawberries from Shuler farms; tomatoes, cucumbers, and greens from Tuten Farms; and poultry and eggs from Fili-West Farms. Island Girl Flower Truck offers "make your own" bouquets, sold from a truck called Buttercup, as colorful reminders of a delightful day.

The busiest person at the Farmers Market of Bluffton is Kim Viljac, executive director and manager.

The market is an important part of the Bluffton community; in addition to putting on a weekly market for loyal customers and visitors, Viljac works with area charities and nonprofits to provide produce, grown in the Lowcountry soil and sun, to residents who might not have regular access to fresh, healthy food. The local bus, Bluffton Breeze, serves the market throughout the afternoon.

Take a seat at a picnic table, and savor a barbecue sandwich and a big glass of sweet tea from Calibogue Catering. Viljac invites everyone to spend some time at this award-winning farmers market.

"It's a place where locals and visitors alike are our community," she says. "Enjoy a taste of the Lowcountry, live music, and good ole Southern hospitality. See y'all at the market!"

An Artist's Haven

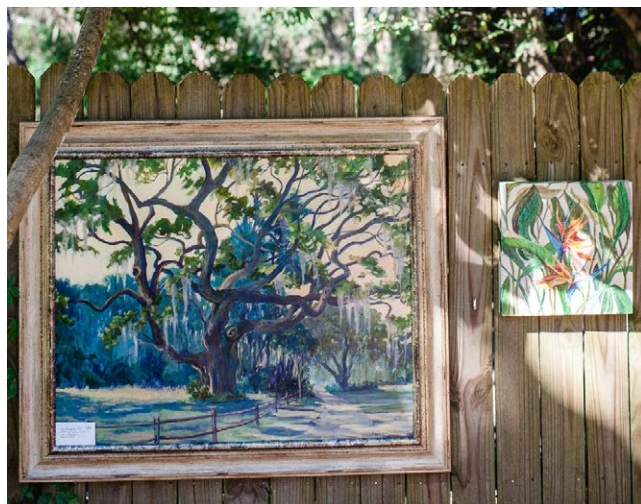

Beautiful places naturally draw artists of all kinds. And Bluffton is no exception. The undulating river, moss-draped trees, and welcoming spirit inspire artists to set up shop in historic cottages. Gallery hop and meet the makers of one-of-a-kind pieces. Or attend one of Bluffton's arts-focused events to celebrate the creativity that flows through this Lowcountry town.

Naturally Inspiring

Bluffton's beautiful backdrop draws artists who let their imaginations run wild | By Linda Lanier

Designated a Cultural District by the South Carolina Arts Commission, Old Town Bluffton is an art lover's delight.

The Society of Bluffton Artists (SOBA) is a pillar of the arts community in Bluffton. Established in 1991, the organization represents more than 100 artists. The cooperative gallery is located in a cottage on the corner of Calhoun and Church streets. Each month the gallery hosts a different exhibit.

Various mediums are represented. Paintings in acrylic, oil, and watercolor depict landscapes, portraits, and abstracts. Photos capture both local scenes and faraway places. Graceful sculptures and wooden pieces evoke the rhythm of the Lowcountry. Delicate jewelry is reminiscent of the ocean and blue skies.

One of the foremost fine art galleries in the Southeast, the Red Piano Gallery, owned by Ben and Lyn Whiteside, has represented nationally known artists for 50 years. Enter through the sculpture garden on Calhoun Street for a beautiful discovery of original works.

The Historic Bluffton Arts & Seafood Festival, held every October, is a highlight of the arts calendar, celebrating two of the town's greatest assets. The week-long event features local artists, craftspeople, music, and dancing. Other attractions include water adventures on the May River, and plenty of fresh shrimp and blue crab served with some of the best hushpuppies in the region.

Regularly scheduled art walks, art shows in various parks, and juried art exhibits are part of the lively fabric of life in Old Town Bluffton. Take a stroll down Calhoun Street and through the Promenade to visit shops, boutiques, and galleries, and find a one-of-a-kind piece to take home in remembrance of this vibrant community.

The Church Street gift shop specializes in Bluffton-branded apparel, home decor, and gifts, as well as candles, cards, and other functional pieces by local and regional artists. Oyster shells, an ever-present Bluffton feature, turn up in necklaces, wine stoppers, and Christmas ornaments. Store owner Tyna Crowe grew up on Hilton Head Island and went to school in Bluffton, so she’s well versed in the Lowcountry aesthetic. “If you would have told me Bluffton was going to become what it is today when I was a teenager running down to the store to get snacks before cheerleading practice, I never would’ve believed it,” she says. Crowe enjoys being part of the local shopping scene in Bluffton because all of the stores promote each other. “When someone comes in and says, ‘You’re our first stop; where else should we go?’ I get to name all the other cute stores in town.”

Maggie & Me, 6 Bruin Road

Owner Rebecca Mancini describes Maggie & Me boutique as a grandmother, mother, and daughter store with elegant styles that suit women of all ages. Mancini, originally from Ohio, discovered Bluffton by way of a sorority sister from Marshall University who has an Airbnb in town. Mancini relocated during the pandemic and soon moved her retail operation to Bluffton, as well. “It’s such a small town, but there are so many connections to people from other places,” Mancini says. “And Bluffton has brought us all together.” Although her Bluffton shop is similar to the one she ran in Ohio, she adapted her clothing choices to suit the Lowcountry lifestyle. “You want to look complete from head to toe, but also make it easy and effortless. It might be a hard style to describe, but you know it when you feel it.”

A Beloved Setting

When it's time to dress up for the occasion, these Bluffton venues do it right

Bluffton promises a romantic setting for your destination wedding, plus all of the amenities for your wedding party to enjoy. Moss-draped oak trees, sandy paths, and wide vistas of the May River create a beautiful backdrop for your big day.

At Montage Palmetto Bluff, choose a stately chapel, grand ballroom, or tented lawn for your ceremony and celebration. Wherever you are, the beautiful May River is ever present. Set up a bridesmaids' spa day or a round of golf for the groomsmen. After the wedding festivities, your relaxing honeymoon awaits with no need to travel elsewhere.

Hewitt Oaks embodies a Lowcountry Southern aesthetic with 25 acres of dreamy live oak groves. The all-inclusive wedding venue eliminates the stress of coordinating multiple vendors and ensures your big day is all yours.

Old Town Bluffton Inn offers hospitality at its finest. The entire 14-room inn is available for booking in the heart of Old Town.

Set your wedding on the grounds of the Heyward House Museum & Welcome Center or amid the Colcock Oak Grove — both managed by the Historic Bluffton Foundation — and add your chapter to the ongoing tales of these storied places.

Spa Day

Find your Bluffton state of mind | By Linda Lanier

The Lowcountry life naturally encourages relaxation. Take your vacation a step further by booking a treatment at one of Bluffton's serene spas.

Spa Montage always maintains its sense of place, drawing inspiration from its location along the May River. This luxury resort spa describes its offerings as "an indigenous spa experience." Find your center in a yoga class or take a dip in the pristine lap pool. The full-service spa menu includes nature-inspired massages, facials, body wraps, and mani-pedis.

LUX, A Medical Spa blends clinical procedures with spa treatments to reverse the effects of daily stress on your skin and body. The professionals here specialize in aesthetics and skin enrichment, bringing together medicine and beauty to rejuvenate and restore.

Pamper yourself with personalized services at Whisper Creek Spa. Enjoy a glass of wine or Champagne and indulge in a massage, body wrap, facial, manicure, or pedicure. Extras like an infrared sauna and salt-inhalation room enhance the full menu of luxury services.

SPRENGER HEALTH CARE

Are you searching for a place where you can live your best life with new friends, modern amenities and compassionate healthcare services should you need them? Are you an avid vacationer seeking a warmer climate or provide care for a loved one during the winter months? If you answered yes to any of those questions, look no further than Sprenger Health Care Bluffton and Sprenger Health Care Port Royal — family-owned, active senior communities located in the heart of Lowcountry. Founded in 1959, Sprenger Health Care offers a variety of social activities and services for seniors, catering to veterans, seasonal travelers and vacationers alike with short-term temporary stay, assisted living, skilled nursing, long-term care and short-term rehabilitation services.

Residents and guests enjoy daily happy hour, salon services, a chef-inspired menu, relaxing in the outdoor courtyard, breaking a sweat in the therapy gym and taking part in a full schedule of social activities designed to meet your ever-changing needs and lifestyle. Triple Play

Three distinct courses cultivate legions of repeat golfers looking for classic Lowcountry links

| By Justin Jarrett

18th hole,
Old South Golf Links

CHART YOUR COURSE • GOLF

Lowcountry golfers in the know are quick to tell you that May River Golf Course — Jack Nicklaus' challenging layout set in scenic Montage Palmetto Bluff Resort — rivals any course in an area rich with world-class tracks.

Today, May River Golf Course earns high marks thanks to its serene location and demand for skillful play. Palmetto Bluff is a 20,000-acre coastal preserve along the May River that once was home to noted instructor Hank Haney, whose highest-profile student — Tiger Woods — would slip in and out to tune up his game in the low-key setting.

May River's tricky, elevated greens require precision accuracy — or a great short game — especially when the course is firm and fast. And the conditions are second-to-none, not only in the Lowcountry but anywhere in the Southeast. Salt-tolerant seashore paspalum keeps the tees, fairways, and rough emerald green and allows for irrigation with brackish water to ease environmental impact.

The course is adorned with native plantings that preserve the area's natural ecosystem. More than 30 massive live oaks were transplanted from other areas of the property to frame the par-72 course that stretches past 7,100 yards from the tips. Beautiful Lowcountry scenery keeps golfers' minds at ease as they strategize how to best avoid the five acres of sand. The sand features do provide sight lines and a blueprint to navigate the course without finding extra trouble.

18th hole, Hilton Head National

May River Golf Course might require the most skill of any layout in Bluffton, but it isn't the only one. Hilton Head National and Old South Golf Links are among the most enjoyable offerings in the area, and their playability keeps locals and visitors coming back.

Hilton Head National opened Gary Player's original 18-hole track in 1989 and added a nine-hole Bobby Weed design in 1995. After relinquishing a few holes over the years, the course currently has 18 holes, a combination of Player's original design and Weed's additions.

Old South Golf Links is a Lowcountry golf course that often flies under the radar. Designed by noted local architect Clyde Johnston, Old South features incredible coastal scenes along McKay's Creek and the Atlantic Intracoastal Waterway, and you're bound to run into some local wildlife while navigating this inventive and intriguing track.

GOLF PARADISE

“Life well lived” is how we describe Montage Palmetto Bluff. And for the avid golfer, the Jack Nicklaus Signature experience at the May River Golf Course is paradise. Take in the majesty of century-old live oaks and serene native landscapes. Woven throughout the May River Forest are 18 holes, 7,171 yards, with a 75.6 rating and 141 slope and several holes bordering the riverbanks. You’ll most remember holes 6, 7, 12 and 14. Or simply to enhance your game, the course offers a world-class practice facility and can arrange time with a pro. Treat yourself to the memory of the May River Golf Course.

LOWCOUNTRY LINKS

Old South Golf Links is the only public course bordering the salt marshes of the Intracoastal Waterway and offers six holes with spectacular water views — especially at high tide. This unique location provides a scenic, challenging and well-maintained golf course that has become highly regarded as a favorite of visitors and locals.

The long list of accolades is the best testament to what makes Old South Golf Links special. Consistently named “Best in Bluffton” and chosen “Lowcountry Golf Course of the Year” by local golf course owners in 2021, Old South is one of only three courses in South Carolina to be GEO Certified.

Be sure to shop the fully stocked Pro Shop or book a lesson with one of their PGA Professionals. The on-site Southern Café offers light breakfast and every golfer’s lunch favorites. Enjoy dining inside, on the screened porch or outside in the Shark Lounge. All seating options overlook the beautiful landscaped lagoon and large practice green.

This course rewards you with Lowcountry golf at its finest, the friendliest staff in town and exceptional value. A great day of golf is waiting!

A JOY TO PLAY

“This course was a joy to play” is the common refrain from golfers finishing their round at Hilton Head National Golf Club. This gem has been heralded for more than 30 years as the best consistently conditioned layout in the Lowcountry. Golf Advisor routinely lists it among the Top 15 courses in South Carolina. Hall of Famer Gary Player and course architecture award winner Bobby Weed used their distinctive design philosophies in ways that make every club in your bag important. But, as golfers will tell you, it’s a course that’s challenging yet not punishing.

The course boasts immaculately groomed TifEagle Ultra greens that run fast and true. The opening holes by Weed offer several strategic risk-reward challenges. The Signature 6th, a par 4, has bordered its entire fairway by a treacherously close lagoon on the right with dangerous pot bunkers on the left. The back nine is tighter and rewards players with a good short game. Most memorable for many, however, is the abundance of wildlife, with no houses in sight.

Facts of Life

How Bluffton measures up | By Linda Lanier

Lifestyle

Deep in the easy-living region of coastal South Carolina, this centuries-old village is surrounded by the May River, majestic oaks, and Spanish moss. The average yearly daytime temperature is 70 degrees, so you can leave the coats behind. The area is serviced by Savannah/Hilton Head International Airport (SAV) and Hilton Head Island Airport (HHH) and is 20 minutes from I-95.

Housing

Charming family homes, carefree condominiums, and elegant mansions — Bluffton properties are designed for almost all lifestyles. You may be pleasantly surprised at housing costs, and relatively moderate property taxes entice new residents looking for a comfortable cost of living.

Careers

Bluffton is one of the fastest growing towns in America with ample career opportunities and room for growth. Economic development organizations, such as the Don Ryan Center for Innovation, provide support for budding entrepreneurs and small businesses.

People

About 32,000 residents call Bluffton home, and the average age of those residents falls in the upper 30s.

Leisure

Blufftonians of all ages enjoy the May River and numerous parks, as well as pathways and trails for walking and biking, arts and cultural activities, the delicious food scene, and community festivals and celebrations.

Education

There are multiple public and private educational options from pre-K through high school. University of South Carolina Beaufort and Technical College of the Lowcountry provide higher-education opportunities. Osher Lifelong Learning Institute, and World Affairs Council offer continuing education classes, seminars, panels, and presentations for residents who want to stay up-to-date and engaged.

Health

Two hospitals — Coastal Carolina Hospital and Hilton Head Hospital — serve Bluffton residents. Physicians, dentists, and health-care providers of all specialties are on call to attend to any health needs. Multiple urgent-care facilities located throughout town offer treatment options for minor illnesses and injuries.

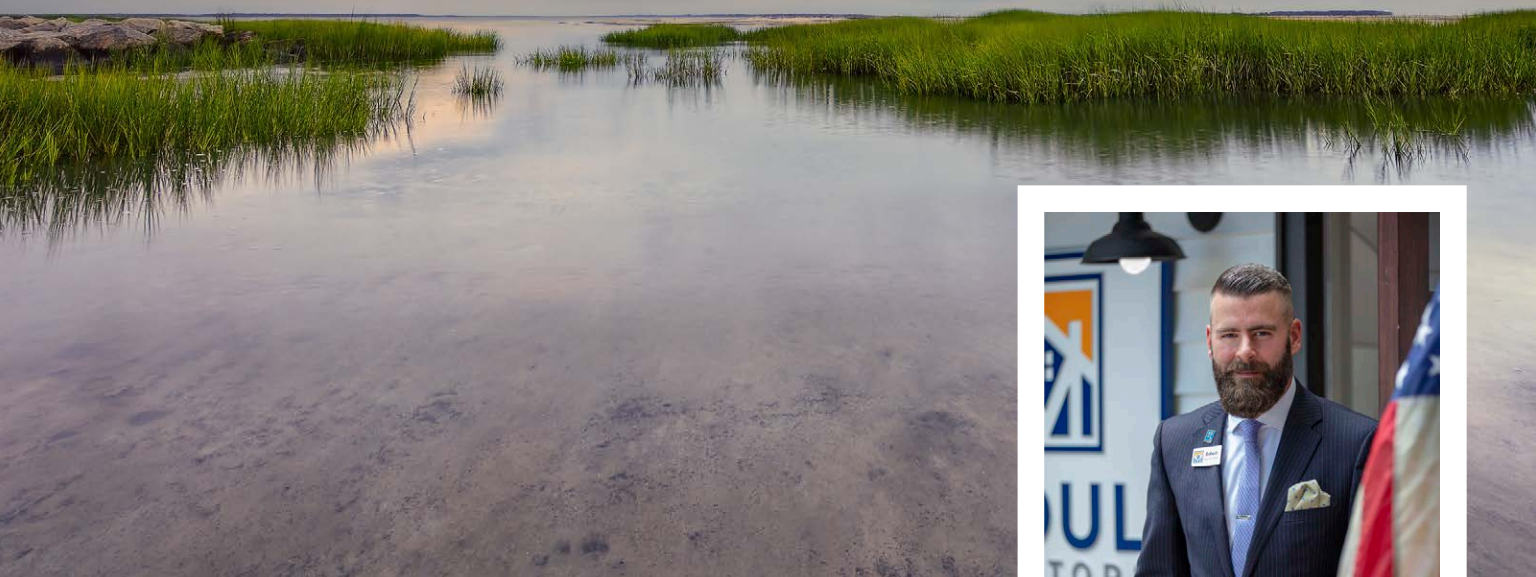

Arts, History, and Culture

Art galleries, music venues, arts and food festivals, holiday celebrations, historical sites, and museums, as well as the ancient and vibrant Gullah culture, give flavor to life in the Lowcountry.

Philanthropy and Worship

Houses of worship of many religious beliefs are a vital part of life in Bluffton, and philanthropic and civic groups are engaged in community events throughout the year.
